Creating the Complete Visual Solution

The main church showing dual winched projection screens and 7000 lumen Eiki projectors for high image quality in daylight conditions

At Reigate Park Church, Creative Audio-Visual Solutions were commissioned to install a high quality visual projection system capable of clear images in the very high ambient conditions within the Church. The system also needed to have a little impact on the Church aesthetically. Two dual winched projection screens allow the casings to rise close to the ceiling when in use, via touch panel control. Two Eiki 7000 lumen projectors show all images with superb clarity from all sources. The system is based on a fully digital HDMI infrastructure – further increasing image quality and long term capability with HD sources and HDCP-licensed material (bluray etc.). A Sony remote camera provides images from activities anywhere in the main Church to be projected and recorded onto DVD as well as fed to relay displays in the foyer and adjacent hall. These displays feature local connectivity for independent meetings.

A new bespoke console houses all tactile equipment including a Kramer switching-scaler (visual source switching), Pioneer bluray player, Kramer touch panel (screen and projector control) and Datavideo camera/bluray preview monitor. An AV-optimised PC was built especially for the system to reliably run service management software and Powerpoint displays. The current Church sound system was reintegrated into the console to work seamlessly with the visual system.
